Leadership 101: The Art and Science of Leading People

Keynote Presentation, Half-Day Course, or Whole-Day Event

Congratulations! You have just been promoted to supervisor or manager for the first time in your life. You've worked hard to achieve this position, but now what do you do? This course will introduce you to the five tools that every successful leader needs in his or her tool bag and will also teach you how to use these five tools to lead people effectively.

How to Become the Boss that Everyone Wants to Work For

Keynote Presentation or Half-Day Course

I am sure that you have seen them around your organization or read about them somewhere. They are the stuff that leadership legends are made of. They never seem to have any trouble filling any open positions on their teams with the brightest and most talented people. And they don't have any retention issues either. People seem to love working for them, forever. What's their secret? You will be surprised at how simple it is. This course will teach you the techniques for becoming the boss that everyone wants to work for.

There's No I in Team

Half-Day Course or Whole-Day Event

With all of the books and seminars and special events designed around improving teamwork in organizations, how come we are still so fragmented? This course examines the scientific bases of teamwork and then teaches you how to put the science into action in your organization. After completing this course, you will have the skills you need to transform a lackluster organization into a high-performing team.

The New Employee

Keynote Presentation or Half-Day Course

Did you know that for the first time in American history, there are four generations active in the workplace? As you would imagine, each generation has its own view on how things like compensation, benefits, retirement, and work schedules should be handled. This course will teach you the important characteristics of each generation and how to redesign your organization to accommodate the different generational needs.
